The crazy thing about the law is that it's because swords fall under the items of antique and cultural value act. So they want to keep all swords to themselves because of their cultural importance (not lose them to foreign museums) but they restrict how many can be made so the swordsmiths have to travel out of the country to make more for others.

TIL Japanese swordsmiths can only make 2 swords per month

If you use traps place them near the edge of the property and well away from plants that are damaged by Japanese Beetles. Since there is some biological control that naturally takes place without your intervention it is recommend that you only consider chemical control when the infestation is severe because the chemicals disrupt the natural process of control.
